

THE INTERIM LEADER & ORGANIZATIONAL ASSESSMENT

A Continuing Education Program of Interim Executives Academy

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON
February 25, 2020

A Complimentary Learning Opportunity Offered by Third Sector Company and 501 Commons

One of the most critical stages of a successful interim engagement is constructing a foundation of useful information to help the nonprofit organization make the best strategic decisions during its transition period. With time at a premium, the interim chief executive can use an organizational diagnostics process as a strategic capacity-building opportunity for diverse people to identify important facts and discuss their implications for the future.

Third Sector Company is proud to recommend and support the Five Elements of a Healthy Nonprofit, created and developed by 501 Commons (www.501commons.org), as an effective assessment tool for interim executives and all nonprofit organizations.

A quality organizational assessment allows you to check how you are managing risk, deploying your staff and volunteer resources, and putting your passion into action. Whatever your assets as an organization, the organization can become more powerful if you have the basics of nonprofit management firmly in place.

Nancy Long

Executive Director, 501 Commons

THIS CONTINUING EDUCATION PROGRAM OF THE INTERIM EXECUTIVES ACADEMY WILL INCLUDE GROUP DISCUSSION AND PRESENTATIONS TO ANSWER THE FOLLOWING QUESTIONS:

- What diagnostic practices are most effective for interim executives?
- What exceptional outcomes have been achieved by interim executives using effective assessment practices?
- How can the Five Elements Self-Assessment enhance the capacity-building nature of transitional leadership?
- How can interim executives help create baseline data and outcome measures to further demonstrate the impact of strategic interim leadership?
